"Take Time By The Forelock And The Worry Out of Christmas"

Oh, how heads do ache, and brains do worry around Christmas time. And you know its all because people keep putting things off procrastinating till the last minute, waiting until they have a thousand and one things to do before they do the little shopping errands that might be put out of the way day by day. Waiting until the fine choice things have all been picked out before they buy their most important presents. You'll agree that its an awful mistake and then go right ahead piling up troubles for Christmas week, and be just fretted and worried out by Christmas morning; instead of being ready to enjoy the happiest holiday of the year as it should be enjoyed.

This is not disinterested advice; but it is not all selfish either. We like to serve our public comfortably; and have them perfectly satisfied with their shopping as well as with what they buy; and everybody knows that the best system in the world can't keep things always pleasant when the holiday crowds are jostling in the last week's nervous haste to secure neglected or forgotten presents.

These are the days for comfortable shopping. Now is the time to pick out the choicest gift things. And these bright sunny days are the best of all, as many shrewd women found out long ago.

"Let us serve you early and we can serve you better."

ELEVEN WOLVES.

Rushed Past Roy Miller in a Cave Twenty Miles Southwest of Town.

Roy Miller, Robert Taylor and Charlie Williamson, three young men who are well known here, went hunting Thanksgiving day to the plaza, twenty miles southwest. Miller summoned up his courage and stepped into a cave to make some exploration and much to his astonishment eleven lobo wolves rushed past him and made a break for the mouth of the cave. Miller shot two of the wolves with a six shooter before they got out of the cave.

Taylor and Williamson each killed two wolves with their Winchester rifles and five escaped. They brought the scalps into the city to prove that they a lucky hunt. It was a very profitable hunt as they will receive $120 for the scalps. Just $40 each for their day's sport.

Large Sales of Fruit Trees.

Richey & DeFreest have sold this season about seventy thousand fruit trees, principally standard varieties of apple. These sales will indicate the large acreage of orchard planting now being done in the upper Pecos Valley.

When we consider that Riverside, California, ships 4600 car loads of oranges in one year that find a ready market why should anyone hesitate to plant an apple orchard in the Pecos Valley for fear that the market should become overstocked.
